Regents Lose TV Round in Report

Special Commission Raps Program as Duplicate of Private Showing

Albany, Feb. 25 (AP)—The Board of Regents today mapped a fight against hopeless odds—for its plan to set up 10 educational television stations, in the wake of a state commission's report that the idea was too costly and of doubtful value.

The special commission, created by the 1952 Legislature to study the proposal for state-operated TV, criticized the Regents program last night in a detailed report to Gov. Dewey and the lawmakers.

"We find no justification for the expenditure of large sums of money for the construction of state-owned and operated television stations," the 15-member commission said in its majority report, adopted by a 10-5 vote.

The group contended that commercial TV outlets already transmitted many news and current-events programs. It added: "It is not the function of the state to duplicate these programs or to compete with private enterprise in this area any more than it is the function of the state to compete with private enterprise in the operation of radio stations, newspapers or other instruments of communication."

Myers Plans Report
Regents Chancellor John P. Myers, one of the members who voted against the commission's findings, told a newsman he was working on a minority report. He said it would be released early next week.

In other major legislative developments:

1. The Republicans' rent-control spokesman, D. Mallory Stephens, attacked Democratic contentions that the Dewey administration was plotting to end rent restrictions. He said the new GOP rent law would comprise "the most effective and equitable" control system in the nation.

2. Democratic lawmakers in both houses retained no hope of forcing a floor vote on a bill that

Group Votes State Rules At Hearing

Civil Service Commission Approves, but Minus Sanction of Employees at Session

State-proposed civil service rules, with three locally requested changes, were approved last night by the Municipal Civil Service Commission in the Common Council chamber, city hall, after a public hearing which failed to win sanction of civil service employees attending.

The rules are subject only to approval by Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk and the New York State Civil Service Commission, and are not to be voted on by the Common Council. Early adoption of them is considered important to the proposed 40-hour work week in the police department.

Thomas J. Finnerty, president of the local commission, explained that the hearing was for discussion of the body of the state-suggested rules only, and not for airing of appendices of the same. Another hearing is to be held on the latter, he said.

Finnerty said also that the commission planned to approve the rules regardless of sentiment at the hearing, which, he indicated, was a formality required by the state.

Provisions Explained
Provisions of the new rules were explained by David Beitner, personnel technician of the State Municipal Civil Service Division, who ruled out discussion of appendices, but found himself entangled in explanations of questions reaching beyond the rules up for hearing.

Points offered by the audience for inclusion in the new rules dealt with:

1. Stronger emphasis on local residence as a requirement for civil service jobs.
2. Inclusion of exempt firemen in a section dealing with the abolishing of positions or the transferring of persons in positions. (In such instances exempt firemen are to receive the same consideration as war veterans.)
3. Correction of errors on eligibility lists without prejudicial consequences.

Many had left the hearing before it came time for Finnerty to ask for an expression of final opinion from the audience. By that time, less than half of the original attendance of about 85 was left.

Recess Is Taken

On suggestion of Andrew J. Murphy, 3rd, head of the local recreation department, who explained that opinion was divided, a five-minute recess was called so that the remaining civil service employees could confer.

After the conference James Pigot, field representative of the State Civil Service Association, announced in their behalf, that they considered the remaining group too small to commit all city employees to any stand on the rules as discussed.

Finnerty, who had asked backing of the group for a vote of confidence, then explained they had left the commission with no alternative, and when he called for a vote, Commissioners Howard C. St. John and Francis Cronk voted for it.

Adoption of the rules, Finnerty stressed, is important to establishment of the 40-hour work week schedule in the local police department.

"If you don't have this book (the rules) in Albany on time," he said, "the police department will not get its 40-hour week. It'll be a long drawn-out process, and you'll never see the 40-hour week before 1960."

George E. Yerry, Jr., as business agent for Local 316, City Employees AFL, wanted to know why the hearing was being held, if the commission intended to adopt the

Gasoline Prices Raised Half Cent

New York, Feb. 25 (AP)—An increase in wholesale gasoline prices throughout New York and New England was announced by Socony-Vacuum Oil Co. today.

The price boosts, which vary according to locality, average out to 1/2 a cent a gallon, Socony officials said. They will go into effect tomorrow.

In the metropolitan New York area, the new price of Socony's regular gasoline will be 15.1 cents a gallon plus taxes, an increase of 1/2 of a cent.

This is Socony's first price increase since July, 1950.

Senators Planning To Give President Standby Controls

Two Democrats Will Back Capehart Bill; Is for Emergency Usage

Washington, Feb. 25 (AP)—A small bipartisan group of senators set out today to hand President Eisenhower standby controls over the nation's economy—whether he wants them or not.

Two Democratic members of the Senate Banking Committee—Sens. Frewer of Delaware and Robertson of Virginia—said in an interview they would push for the standby powers bill that Chairman Capehart (R-Ind.) planned to introduce today.

It would allow the President or Congress to freeze all wages, prices, rents, credit and production of the nation almost instantly.

Intended for use in case of war or other emergency, the drastic freeze would apply for 90 days to give Congress and the White House time to work out whatever controls might be needed for a longer period.

To Kick Up Battle

The move appeared certain to kick up a congressional battle. Senate Republican Leader Taft of Ohio has publicly served notice of his opposition to any standby controls. So has Chairman Wolcott (R-Mich.) of the House Banking Committee.

Eisenhower has said he sees no need to extend the present controls law, due to expire April 30. (Continued on Page 16, Col. 4)

Controls End On Groceries, Other Items

Washington, Feb. 25 (AP)—The government today lifted price controls from nearly all dry groceries, cigarettes, copper and aluminum.

Price Stabilizer Joseph Freehill said controls will be retained only on coffee and coffee concentrates in the dry grocery line.

Items on which controls were removed include breakfast cereals, flour, soups, jams, jellies and similar products. At the same time the Office of Price Stabilization dropped its requirement that ceiling prices be posted in stores.

Aside from a very few selected items, such as bread and bakery products, controls now have been taken off practically all foods.

In the major metals field, OPS is retaining curbs only on prices of steel and nickel.

The removal of ceilings from cigarettes also applies to other tobacco products. Cigars, however, have been free of curbs for some time.

Today's action was the fourth removal of price curbs since President Eisenhower called for ending controls in an orderly manner before April 30, the date on which they will expire automatically.

Committee Plans To Give $5,242 Check for Holland

Letter Written to Queen Juliana—City Has Plans to Honor Officials

A check for $5,242.52 raised through a collection of funds here to aid victims of Holland's recent floods will be presented to Baron duVos Van Steenwijk, consul-general of The Netherlands, in New York tomorrow by Jack Feye, chairman of the Kingston-Holland Relief Committee.

Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk, who will accompany Feye on the trip, today released a copy of the following letter to Queen Juliana of The Netherlands:

"When we in Kingston read the news of the terrible storm and floods that had beset your country, everyone wanted to help. Spontaneously, a committee was formed to establish a Kingston-Holland relief fund.

It is with a great deal of pleasure that I forward to you a check representing the amount raised by this committee.

To Gracious Queen
"From the hearts of the people of Kingston, this gift goes to a most gracious queen and her people."

"When you visited our community last April, you captured the hearts of the people of Kingston and the surrounding hamlets of Ulster county, through which you traveled, and they have affectionately called this gift 'The Queen's Fund.' They ask that it be a gift to a courageous people through their sovereign from her friends in America, who will not forget her or her people."

"With this gift go our earnest hopes and prayers for a speedy recovery from the ravages of nature."

The check will be presented at 11 a. m. tomorrow. It will go to the queen with the check in the diplomatic pouch which is transmitted daily by air from The Netherlands consulates to the homeland.

Mayor Newkirk, pursuant to a resolution passed by the Common Council in December, will present to Baron duVos Van Steenwijk and to Edy K. Altes, vice consul of The Netherlands in New York, printed citations for their aid and interest in promoting last year's 300th Anniversary in Kingston.

The citations, some of which will also be presented Kingston citizens this week, are in the name of the people of the City of Kingston and the Common Council.

The Flood Relief Fund has received contributions from a wide area right up to the last minute. Yesterday, the mayor received the following touching letter:

"The Girl Scout Troop 72 of the Church of the Comforter, of which I am one of the leaders, voted to give two weeks' dues which amounted to $2.40 to the Kingston Holland Flood Relief Fund."

"This money would have been given to the Girl Scouts of America."

Defense Chief Reported to Be Askance at Suggestions of Big Reductions

Washington, Feb. 25 (AP)—Congressional hopes to make a big slash in federal spending were reported today to have received a rude jolt from Secretary of Defense Wilson and other administration officials.

Wilson started presentation of the Defense Department's fiscal 1954 needs yesterday before a House appropriations subcommittee, meeting behind closed doors.

Members were reluctant to discuss his testimony, but one of them who wouldn't permit use of his name quoted Wilson as "looking askance" at suggestions of big defense cuts.

"I definitely don't see how the defense budget can be cut much, if at all," this member said. "Mr. Wilson didn't point out any places where it could be cut, and I got the impression he didn't think it can be cut."

The budget submitted to Congress last month by former President Truman called for expenditure of over 46 billion dollars by the Defense Department during the 1954 fiscal year, which starts next July 1. It called for new appropriations of approximately 42 billions. It is this figure which Congress must work on, since the 46 billions of estimated outlays next year will come largely from money appropriated in past years. This word on Wilson's views followed closely on reported testimony before the Senate Banking Committee yesterday by several top Eisenhower administration officials. The committee is considering whether to provide authority after April 30 for economic controls.

President Says Balance Difficult

Eisenhower Tells Group of Enormity of U. S. Budget Issue

Washington, Feb. 25 (AP)—President Eisenhower said today it will be terribly difficult to balance the Federal budget for the fiscal year starting July 1.

In his second news conference since taking office, the president also said:

1. This country would be put in a very difficult position if it tried to repudiate all international secret agreements made during World War Two.

2. He said in effect that he is open to suggestions for improvement of the secret agreements resolution he sent to Congress.

3. He would meet with Premier Stalin or anyone else if he thought such a conference might lead to a lasting peace.

4. He said that, geographically speaking, he would be willing to meet at some half-way point rather than go to Russia.

Eisenhower stressed that any agreements resulting from such a conference would have to be iron-clad and what he described as self-enforcing.

And he said any such conference would have to be with the full knowledge of U. S. Allies.

McDonald Orders Evidence Presented Against Police

New York, Feb. 25 (AP)—Brooklyn District Attorney Miles F. McDonald has directed his staff to present to the grand jury evidence in the case of a truck driver who charges he was beaten by two policemen.

Authorities say the driver, Salvatore Pace, 22, has identified Patrolmen Morris Lazarus and Gabriel Dillon as the officers he said beat him late Saturday night. The policemen deny the charge.

"This officer punched me," Pace said of Lazarus yesterday as he named him as his second alleged assailant.

Lazarus said Pace kicked him in the ankle and tried to wrest the steering wheel of a police car

Enthusiasm and interest which about 125 persons from Kingston and the surrounding area displayed Tuesday evening at a public meeting called by the Industrial Development committee of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce, left no doubt in the minds of the committee that Kingston people are definitely interested in the industrial expansion of the city.

At the conclusion of the meeting which was called to discuss industrial expansion and to ascertain how many people would "buy a share in the future of Kingston" by subscribing to stock in the Kingston Industrial Development Corporation, the committee of the Chamber of Commerce was augmented by three members who will act in an advisory capacity and the meeting was adjourned until Monday, March 9, at 8 o'clock at the court house to elect directors for the corporation and to lay plans and policies for the future.

Named to Committee
Named to that committee was Ernest Grace of Bloomingville, Richard Kalish of Kingston and Dorothy Narel of Lake Katrine.

Many of those attending the meeting at the court house Tuesday evening subscribed to shares of stock and others volunteered to go out and solicit subscriptions between now and March 9.

On March 9 those who have pledged to purchase stock in the development corporation will come prepared to elect directors and proceed with the organization.

Chas. J. Baltz, Jr., chairman of the Chamber of Commerce committee, appointed by former President Lawrence J. MacAvery, presided at the meeting and outlined the proposal and explained how the Kingston Industrial Development Corporation came into being.

Meeting Too Big for Room
The meeting was originally called for the supervisors room in the court house but the attendance was so large that it was necessary to adjourn the meeting to the large court room.

Baltz explained that some time ago in order to seek new industry, the committee was named. On the committee is Pratt Boice, Clarence Buddenhagen, DeWeese DeWitt, Bev. C. Anderson, Howard C. St. John as counsel, and Lawrence J. MacAvery who was then president of the chamber of commerce.

Since that time the committee has met and discussed industrial problems, efforts have been made to secure industry and during the past couple of months some 10 or 15 inquiries have been received from industries interested in relocating plants.

Baltz told how about a year ago through the New York State Department of Commerce a contact was made with one of the largest corporations in America which was considering a plant expansion. A labor survey was attempted in a fifteen mile radius. Cards were sent out and the result was very disappointing, only about 16 per cent of the cards were returned. This lack of interest was one of the things which caused the concern to locate elsewhere. After six months of hard work the committee saw the concern go to Pennsylvania. In another instance Baltz said a Brooklyn concern of 75 years in business had sought to move its plant because of expanding business. This company employed between 200 and 250 men. The company was willing to spend $200,000 for a building and $75,000 for moving expense. The problem of sufficient water facilities at the site came up and the city was unable to provide the site required with necessary facilities.

Require Six-Inch Main
Baltz explained that most concerns required a six-inch main to provide sufficient head for fire sprinkler systems. Kingston has the sixty pounds of pressure sought but at available sites on the outskirts this head is lacking without additional mains and a new pipe line from Coopers Lake.

Lack of suitable sites within the area now served by our water supply is one of the main drawbacks. Practically every concern now moving to new locations require five square feet of space out

MJM Education Group To Discuss Reading

Our Reading Program is the topic of a discussion to be held at the quarterly meeting of the Myron J. Michael Junior High School Education Association on Monday, March 2, at 8 p. m. in the MJM auditorium. Immediately prior to the discussion, Jacob Tremper, president, will conduct a short business meeting of the parent-teacher organization. The discussion on reading will begin with explanations of the materials of teaching reading used in schools today. Miss M.

Isabel Flynn, first grade teacher of School 6, will describe methods used to teach reading to beginners. Miss Adiska Conro, teacher at MJM School, will talk on the reading program at junior high level. Other members of the panel will include Miss Ruth C. Grant, reading specialist of Kingston schools; William R. Reardon, principal, School 3, and Harry T. Gumaer, principal MJM School, moderator.

Among the questions to be discussed are: What are the best methods of teaching reading? Under what conditions does retardation help improve reading? What causes poor readers? How does Kingston compare with other school systems in reading instruction? What can parents do to help children who have reading difficulties?

Questions from the floor will be called for following the initial presentation.

Hoover, Truman and Eisenhower are the only U. S. Presidents who were born west of the Mississippi river.

THE RUMINATOR

By HUMPHREY B. NEILL

A Column of Contrary Opinion

Have you ever tried to walk on a tight-rope? I think we have as difficult an assignment in trying to keep our balance in weighing the news.

You have observed, I know, how the complexion of the news has been changing of late. Last week's emphasis (in all papers and over all radios) on the "grim" outlook, which was presented to leading members of the Congress at a White House briefing, may be used as an example. Certainly those who have paid any attention at all to the enveloping crises throughout the world have known all along that the outlook is grim. But apparently it was felt by the inner circle (or recommended by some public relations counselor) that the public might be getting too optimistic over what the Republican administration can accomplish quickly in resolving the stupendous problems it inherited on January 20.

This brings to mind an incident concerning the theory of contrary opinion, that you may find interesting. The Ruminator was being interviewed a few days ago by one of the prominent newspapers on the west coast of Florida and the attractive lady reporter inquired "why" contrary opinions often worked out the way they did. She had previously remarked that she had little or no interest in, or knowledge of, finance or socio-economics and so might have to ask a lot of questions to understand the "contrary theory."

In reply I said that she had put her finger unknowingly on one of the chief reasons why a contrary opinion is often more accurate than a generalized viewpoint. If people do not have any interest in, or do not pay attention to, large questions of public importance, then it seems obvious that their opinions on these questions are merely going to be taken from some headline they chance to see, or from some off-hand remark they hear at the bridge table or in the smoking car.

A western newspaper recently reported that, as an experiment, it repeated a Korean story without change on the front page three days in succession, to see what the reaction would be. There was no reaction. Not a letter was received. Yet, said the newspaper, if a comic strip were left out or repeated they would receive a bundle of critical mail at once.

Going back to our opening discussion on "news," it seems to me that these two incidents explain why we have got to examine our news with a strong contrary viewpoint.

In other words, when we hear or read what appears to be a somewhat exciting or disturbing piece of news—or pronouncement—emanating from Washington, the first question we must ask ourselves is this: Is this story planted for purposes of propaganda or is it a bona fide news-break?

Don't misunderstand me. I do not imply that the President purposely makes up stories to influence people. Obviously, Mr. Eisenhower is not that type of demagogue. But any President is frequently placed in the position to offset "opinions" that have gained circulation and credence, but which are false. Similarly, it is necessary at times to send trial news-balloons aloft to see how the people will react, before taking a definite stand on some public policy. Again, it may be necessary, as in the case last week apparently, to counteract undue optimism or pessimism that has sprung up in Congress, or among the people.

The Ruminator thinks we have been witnessing a series of "trial balloons" lately—both here and abroad.

The Korean war and the continuing problems of Red China and of Nationalist China have indeed caused an international tempest. What we have to ferret out is whether it is more than "a tempest in a British teapot." Are the speeches and newspaper stories abroad trial-balloons to see how the public reacts—and to get the public used to probable new policies concerning the Far East wars—or are they actual reflections of official thought and judgment? The Ruminator leans to the view that international misunderstandings and disagreements over what policy to follow in and around the Korean theatre are not as deep-seated as they appear. That is, a good deal of the speech-making is for public consumption. I think. At least, there is reason to analyze the news from a contrary angle over the near-term.

When people expect too much, they're likely to be disappointed; when people are told suddenly of new plans, they react excitedly. So, it is necessary to remember that much of our news is propaganda issued for "educational purposes."

Van Buren Named Winner of Freedom Foundation Award

Walter C. Van Buren of Buffalo, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Van Buren of 24 Henry street, has been named by Freedom Foundation, Inc., of Valley Forge, Pa., as the recipient of one of its national awards for "outstanding contribution to freedom during 1952."

Announcement of the annual awards was made Sunday by the foundation's president, Kenneth D. Wells, at special Washington's birthday ceremonies at their national headquarters.

Van Buren was named to receive a second award in the photographic classification for a picture made in the pressroom of the Buffalo Evening News last November. It showed two pressmen examining the front page of a copy of the newspaper after it came off the press. The banner headline concerned the H-bomb. He titled the photograph, News Helps Make Freedom Ring.

For his contribution he will receive the bronze Freedom Foundation honor medal and a $100 cash award. He received a similar award last year with one of his photographs. The award, together with awards won by three western New York schools, the Erie County American Legion, a News editorial writer and a News staff artist, will be formerly presented at a regional meeting of the foundation to be held in Buffalo in the spring.

Graduated from KHS

Freedom Foundation makes annual awards totaling $100,000 to individuals, organizations and schools throughout the nation for outstanding work done in behalf of the American Way of Life.

A native of Kingston, Van Buren is a graduate of Kingston High School and Buffalo State Teachers College where he received his bachelor and science degree in 1936. He has also taken graduate work at Cornell and New York Universities. He is now editor at Moore Business Forms, Inc., Niagara Falls, assigned to sales promotion and public relations. He has won numerous national, regional and local awards for his photographs and many of his pictures have been published by national magazines, picture services and newspapers.

U. S. WATER PROJECTS

Much talk is heard these days about government reorganization as a general proposition, but soon it will have to be translated into specific proposals by President Eisenhower.

No tougher job confronts him than how to consolidate government efforts in the related fields of flood control, river and harbor development, reclamation and irrigation, and soil conservation.

At the present time, these operations are distributed among three agencies—the Army Engineers, the Interior Department's Bureau of Reclamation, and the Agriculture Department.

The Hoover Commission on Government Reorganization sharply criticized this scattered effort, declared that it produced costly competition among the agencies, and recommended that these functions be brought together under one tent.

Other analysts have made shocking charges against the Army Engineers (handling flood control and river-harbor work) and the Bureau of Reclamation. Some have said that the Engineers often deliberately understate the costs of projects to assure their approval by Congress and keep a dominant role in the picture. Others have laid cost-estimate errors simply to gross misjudgment.

Reclamation officials have been accused of no less serious offenses against the public purse and the national interest.

It happens that both these agencies have many fast friends on Capitol Hill. Any reorganization plan which went the whole way suggested by Mr. Hoover—full merger—would probably be doomed to failure now.

The reclamation bureau is a favorite of western congressmen, for understandable reasons. The Engineers find support wherever water development is a big issue. If the analysts are to be believed, neither group is hesitant about using the leverage it has on lawmakers.

Mr. Eisenhower's advisers surely must be aware of these pressures, and the chances are that the President's proposals in this field will fall short of merger and will look instead to a clarification of function, an elimination of overlapping a general simplifying and streamlining.

But in any event, the whole story of federal activity in this broad area ought to be thoroughly aired, so the public can understand the problems and so the groundwork can be laid for later more drastic reorganization if the likely half-way measures prove inadequate.

Caviar will be coming from Iran rather than from Russia in the future. Which means that instead of not being able to afford Russian caviar most of us will not be able to afford Iranian caviar.

NOBODY TRIES TO FLEE PARADISE

Dispatches from Berlin say Communist authorities are preparing to create a no-man's land between East and West Berlin as a device for closing the last big holes in the Iron Curtain.

It is through these gaps, of course, that East Germans have been pouring recently in one of the greatest refugee streams of the post-war era.

This newest effort to wall off the Soviet orbit of nations from the West should occasion slight surprise. The wonder is the Reds have been so long in sealing off these last leaks.

Should the new border controls and depopulated zone prove effective, the western world will naturally have deep regrets. Though the refugees are a tremendous burden upon Western Germany and seem sometimes an insoluble problem, they are people of courage, people willing to risk their lives for freedom. The free nations must inevitably welcome them.

The no-man's land project is simply one more proof that Paradise does not lie beyond the Iron Curtain. People do not try to escape Paradise, and when they do resort to such measures at risk of life, it is most em-

MORE EVILS AT YALTA

For several centuries, Russia had been the enemy of Turkey. In Russia's march of conquest from the little Duchy of Moscow to world power, Turkey was pushed out of the Balkans and almost was driven back into Asia. The Crimean War (1853-56) has left a bitter memory in both countries. The Dardanelles has protected Constantinople (Istanbul) from Russia's might.

In 1936, by the Montreux Convention, Turkey was permitted to rearm the Dardanelles and to close the straits in case of war or threat of war. At Yalta, in 1945, a secret agreement was reached by Stalin, Roosevelt and Churchill to reconsider the Montreux Convention. Before this could be accomplished, President Truman went to Potsdam and discovered the fearful nature of the Russian game, with the result that many subjects were left incomplete. Had this secret agreement of Yalta been carried through, Turkey would be a flattened country today instead of our strongest ally in the Mediterranean.

Another phase of the Yalta Agreement was the tacit acceptance of the expulsion of about 10,000,000 Germans from countries outside of Germany in which many had lived for centuries. This idea was confirmed at Potsdam, Churchill even telling the House of Commons about it on February 27, 1945 before the Potsdam meeting. Actually this had nothing to do with war, as most of these Germans were women and children, but was designed to smooth the way for the eventual conquest of these countries by Communism. Why Roosevelt and Churchill should have agreed to it, in view of their joint authorship of the Atlantic Charter, of which this was a violation, is difficult at this stage to say. The fact remains that in such countries as Czechoslovakia, Poland, Austria and Hungary, the most brutal genocide was practiced with our consent. The murdered persons cannot be revived, but we can confess error, publish the truth, and somewhat redeem our honor.

Also, at Yalta it was agreed that Russian nationals in Germany under American and British jurisdiction should be handed over to Russia by the Americans and British. Many of these Russians had taken refuge in Germany and other countries from Stalin's tyranny before the war. Many of them had been enslaved by Germany and had been forced into the German army by Hitler. For all these people such a delivery could only mean a swift death.

How many we handed over, I do not know. Perhaps Senator Homer Ferguson can get at the facts, or maybe all documents in connection with this matter have been destroyed. This stands out: that until we broke with Russia, we were handing innocent people over to Stalin to be murdered.

There is no advantage in discussing in detail what was done to Poland at Yalta. Poland has now been totally conquered by Soviet Russia and is, for all practical purposes, a province of that country. However, a Congressional investigation would show that at Yalta the steps were taken to make this conquest easy and that they were taken with the consent of Roosevelt and Churchill. Should Poland ever be reconstituted a nation, it would be useful for the truth to be in the record.

I shall refer to the Far Eastern secret agreements at Yalta in another article. The subject is too large and important for a paragraph. Yet, it needs to be noted that just as it was made easy for Russia to move westward into Europe, so was it made easy for Russia to move eastward into Asia. It would seem as though the purpose of Yalta was to make Stalin the conqueror of the world. As it has worked out, it was made easy for Communists to kill Americans.

If Senator Homer Ferguson is to investigate secret treaties, he might also go into the question of Roosevelt's deals with the Arabs, leading to the organization of the Arab League. It would be of value to get a full record of his discussions with Ibn Saud on February 28, 1945. There is published correspondence, dated April 5, 1945, to show that that sort of deal was made between Roosevelt and Ibn Saud which justified the Arab in believing that the United States would not be recognized by the United States. Subsequently, the Arabs took the position that they had been double-crossed by President Truman, who had nothing to do with the original deal.

We need to know the truth about that. (Copyright, 1953, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

KHELLIN, DRUG USED IN ANGINA PECTORIS

Heart ailments are now very common and most men and women know that angina pectoris (breast pang), pain under breast bone, is a frequent symptom, so that pain in their region is always a threat to their peace of mind.

In angina pectoris, pain extends under breast bone to the left shoulder and sometimes down the left arm. If patient remains quiet, the pain, which is like the pressure of a vise, passes away in a short time, but may occur even when patient is lying down at complete rest.

This pain is believed due to a tightening or partial closure of the blood vessels supplying the heart itself, which prevents the necessary oxygen carried in the blood from reaching the muscle tissues of the heart wall. Drugs to relax or open up the blood vessels are the usual treatment and new drugs for this purpose are appearing frequently.

Some months ago I wrote of the work of three research physicians in Cairo, Egypt, who wrote of their results obtained by a drug, Ammi Vinsaga, which grows in eastern Mediterranean countries. The active principle of this drug, now called khellin, was given to 250 patients with coronary thrombosis (heart stroke) with or without angina pectoris when at rest. The results were considered most satisfactory; the death rate was no larger than in a group without heart disease. No drug habit was formed. Even after two years of use by patients, khellin was still effective in relieving angina pectoris.

In "Circulation," New York, Drs. L. A. Naleski, W. B. Rudy, and N. C. Gilbert report that crystalline visamin, khellin, of 97.0 to 99.8 purity was given to 21 patients between the ages of 44 and 75 who had angina pectoris. At first they were given 200 mg. per day in four equal doses. As this dose caused reactions in many cases—nervousness, nausea, vomiting—it was reduced in amount.

When the daily dose was reduced to 100 mg. in two equal doses, only four patients experienced these side effects after six weeks of treatment.

Khellin improved the heart condition of 19 patients who continued to take the drug; each patient commented on his ability to withstand more exertion without bringing on angina pectoris. Five still had some pain, but it was less severe and occurred less often.

The results show that anginal symptoms may be controlled in 80 per cent of patients treated with 100 mg. of khellin daily, when used in proper dosage. The side actions—nausea, vomiting, nervousness—are believed due to impurities present in the drug.

It Does Look Silly, Doesn't It?

Edson's Washington News Notebook

NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington—(NEA)—True D. Morse, undersecretary of Agriculture in the new Eisenhower cabinet, was the author of a "More Meat" plan that got kicked around a good bit back in the spring of 1951. Today Mr. Morse looks back on his plan and says that if it had been adopted, U. S. livestock markets wouldn't be in their present pickle.

Two years ago Mr. Morse was running the Doane Agricultural Service in St. Louis. This is a farm-management concern which also issues a twice-monthly "Digest" on farm trends for its clients, many of whom are food processors. Mr. Morse founded this Digest about 15 years ago. He was editor until he came to Washington as top assistant to Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson.

In the spring of 1951, Office of Price Stabilization slapped ceilings on retail meat prices. They were to be rolled back progressively on May 20, Aug. 1 and Oct. 1. The entire meat industry from livestock raiser to feeder to packer to wholesaler to retail butcher protested.

Because of his standing in the agricultural field, it was more or less natural that Mr. Morse was selected to draw up a "More Meat" plan as a substitute for price controls.

More than a score of national, regional and state farm producers, processors and distributors joined in sponsoring this plan. Among them: American Farm Bureau Federation, National Grange, American Meat Institute, National Council of Farmer Cooperatives, American Stockyard Association, National Cattlemen's Association, and so on.

The plan which Mr. Morse drew up was no simple thing. It was billed as a "common sense meat program." But it was also presented as something to stop inflation, get the consumers more meat, restore sound money, balance and stabilize the economy.

It set up 10 goals for raising more corn, stretching feed supplies, improving pasture, producing more hogs, cattle, sheep, poultry and dairy products, educating consumers to buy more thrifly.

Ten task forces were set up to manage all these things. A pamphlet, posters and leaflets were printed to promote them.

The promoters came to Washington and spent an entire day on Capitol Hill, buttonholing senators and representatives. That night they held a big dinner in the National Press Club to which several hundred congressmen, government officials and the press corps were invited. Leaders of the plan were lined up at the head table to explain it. Everything was to be left to private enterprise and a free market to solve. Government controls were to be bypassed.

But somehow the thing never got off the ground. Congress would have none of it. Press and radio couldn't understand it. So that was the last that was ever heard of the "More Meat" plan.

The interesting thing about it today is that it is the essence of the farm program that is now offered by the Eisenhower administration, even though market conditions are the exact opposite of what they were two years ago.

The Korean war was then less than a year old. With meat scarce, prices were rising. Now, with the war nearly three years old, meat, supply has caught up with demand, as the Morse plan contemplated. Controls are now removed and prices are falling.

Situation Is Different

But the answers are still fundamentally the same. The fluctuations are explained as the normal ups and downs of business. If there is to be this great reliance on private enterprise exclusively as the solution for everything, then losses have to be taken just as cheerfully as profits are made, and what's the excitement?

This is apparently the fundamental philosophy of Secretary Benson in refusing to get panicky about the drop in cattle prices. He refuses to rush to Congress with demands for price supports.

Many of the big cattlemen's organizations have come to Secretary Benson's defense. They are entirely consistent in not wanting supports now, just as they did not want them in the past.

The catch is that it is the big cattlemen who talk like this. With thousands of acres and thousands of head of cattle, they can afford to take their losses. The people who are hurt are the little fellows, the small farmers and the small feed-lot operators.

Today's glut of cattle on the market, forcing prices down, is attributed in large part to recent droughts. Cattle had to be rushed to market to save them.

In some cases, banks are reported to have foreclosed on loans to cattlemen, forcing further sales on a depressed market. Bankers deny this, but there is no clear picture of what is happening. A lot depends on individual bank examiners.

A solution, however, is believed to lie in better credit arrangements to carry the stockman over this difficult period, adjustment until what Secretary Benson calls a "more orderly market" can be restored.

Humphrey Is Credited With Best Statement About Forthcoming Measures on Taxation

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Feb. 25 — About the most sensible thing that has been said about tax legislation has come from the secretary of the treasury, George Humphrey, who remarked it would be "two or three months" before the Eisenhower administration is likely to be ready with recommendations to Congress. He added:

"It's too early to say much. We're just getting our feet on the ground." To the average person will seem surprising, because it might be assumed that within 30 days the administration would know its plans. The truth, however, is that probably not a single man, either in the treasury or in any other agency of the government, today actually knows the facts and background of every important item in the Truman budget. And this is the budget which is now before the Eisenhower administration for consideration. It took most of the year 1952 to make that budget, and all the memoranda and papers pertaining to the various items were naturally familiar to the budget officials and the department heads of the old administration.

Now it is necessary not only to examine the lump-sum figures which were made by the various departments and agencies of the government under old policies but to learn what the justification may be under the Eisenhower program for each item that goes into a departmental total.

The job of analyzing the budget in such short period by a new administration, especially at a time when emergency spending for war purposes is at its height, is something that has never before been undertaken when administrations have changed. In 1921 and 1933 the federal budget was a relatively small affair. The Truman budget now being studied is more than ten times as big as the 1933 budget.

Secretary Humphrey has a fairly big staff trying to come to grips with the question of receipts and expenditures, and when he said "two or three months," it may turn out that he was over-optimistic and that about the only thing the administration will know by June is that the budget has many items in it that must be further examined before approval can be given. It may be August before a new budget can be completed.

Meanwhile, the task of the Congress is equally difficult, though the committees in both Houses will be of their own initiative do some cutting, and this will complicate the budget bureau's problems, because it will have to make sure that the cutting is being done in a practical way. Sometimes cancellation of a contract in one place involves more expense in other directions.

All this has to be taken into account as the budget goes through the various stages of re-examination. Normally the public would not know about and would not pay much attention to the making of a new budget. This year, however, the possible reduction in taxes is tied in with the size of the expenditure side of the budget, and the pinch of high taxes, both for individuals and corporations, is having economic consequences that could affect adversely the future progress of the whole productive machinery of the nation.

One phase of the fiscal problem that has not been discussed very much, although the House Ways and Means Committee report made some mention of it, is the possible stimulus toward higher tax rates which may come from reducing tax rates. Back in the 1920's it was asserted by tax experts that the lower the surtax rates, for example, the more revenue the treasury would collect, and it worked out that way.

Many business transactions which are held back because of high tax rates are consummated when tax rates come down. Likewise, price reductions are possible in many products where high taxes have previously been imbedded in the price structure. In the end, the total volume of transactions tends to increase as tax rates come down. This swells treasury receipts. It is fallacious, therefore, to rely on off-the-cuff estimates that this or that tax will mean a "loss" to the treasury. The fiscal guessers here have usually been wrong in estimating tax receipts—they have been known for the last 20 years under Democratic administrations to underestimate receipts and overestimate expenditures.

The Eisenhower administration would make a ten-strike if it could go back to the accurate estimating which the treasury usually did before it became politically habit to play tricks with the national psychology in forecasting budget figures. One of the favorite devices used to be to predict a ten-billion-dollar deficit in January, and then hope for a wave of the tide in the coming June when the deficit turned out to be only three or four billion—as if any deficit could be a source of rejoicing. But that was the kind of psychology depended upon to ease the deficits into the public mind. It looks as if the Eisenhower administration wants to take enough time to give the public accurate figures—and that would be a welcome change. (Reproduction Rights Reserved)

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

I have read that President Eisenhower intends to leave Mrs. Perle Mesta in Luxembourg at least until the coronation, thus permitting her to enjoy official status and the prerogatives thereof during the negotiations in London. This would be very decent of Ike and a good decision from the standpoint of our relations with the people of Britain. Their silly press, which apes and exaggerates the worst faults of ours, will go into frenzies over Perle, probably on the supercilious and abusive side, but the hostess with the mostes on the ball will leave more laughter and hangover than heartache.

To my confusion and surprise, I observed when I met Mrs. Mesta a woman of strong character whose frivolity nevertheless is genuine, a baffling combination of traits overlaid by extravagant generosity. I found myself enfolded in this lavishness on my arrival in the city of Luxembourg about eight o'clock of a cold, snowy night after an alarming drive over slippery roads through a stretch of the poorest, meanest country in northern France. Although I had never met her and she had no reason to put herself out for an adverse critic of the Truman administration, she had reserved a fine suite in a hotel whose name she pronounced "Brasserie" because, she said, if you call it the "Brasseur," people think of brasserie, anyway, and it comes easier.

There was a message commanding me to phone her at once which, being done, she said "come on out here" and sent her car down, driven by a chauffeur named Frank who soon found a chance to confide that he was terribly homesick and hoped madam was going back to Washington for the Jackson Day dinner. We went to the legation and met one of the most interesting and ingratiating women I have ever encountered and her beautiful sister, Mrs. George Tyson, and

Mr. Tyson, a retired banker from Boston.

Madam Minister's publicity out of Washington had prepared me to find a raucous parvenu who would spit through her teeth and slap her butler on the back. In five days in Luxembourg, much of the time in the company of Perle and the beautiful Marguerite, I found myself scanning the line of Madam's chin and sampling the challenge of a pair of shrewd, knowing eyes. We left for Frankfurt in our own car in another blizzard but before we shoved off, Perle had sent Frank back to the legation with a big box of cold lunch which she had sent down earlier, to tell the butler to do a prettier job of the wrapping. I then discovered that, except for the bar bill, our hotel tab had been lifted by Mrs. Mesta and that she could say would dissuade either her or the hotel manager.

I had been watching the expressions of the Luxembourgers in many public places, at lunch and tea, and, though I drew beads on many of them when they could not have seen what I was up to, I saw no cynicism, no sneers, no flicker of that contempt which I had been prepared to find in a European people for an American woman who was undoubtedly a spendthrift more spectacular and gauche than any phantom of fiction but with an endearing quality no more easily defined than love.

Professionals of diplomacy and jaded journalists of conventional taste and manners deplored her conduct as being patronizing and impolite. And there was legitimate ground for criticism on the score of her politicking among the American soldiers and air force men from Verdun, Metz and thereabouts, who were brought in aboard chartered liners, every two weeks for a series of feasts and dancing, all at Perle's expense. The Eisenhowers had flown up for some of these and Perle had pictures of Ike in a chef's hat

'Sound Dollar' Idea Backed Strongly by Eisenhower Men

By FRANK O'BRIEN
Washington, Feb. 25 (AP)—Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey is keeping on his desk a silver dollar, three decades old, put there by a visitor who advised him to look at it often.

The visitor's idea was that in recent decades the dollar had lost almost half its buying power, and that it should be a major objective of the new Republican administration to prevent further depreciation.

The visitor's viewpoint has some powerful support. President Eisenhower, Secretary Humphrey, Undersecretary Marion Folsom, Deputy Secretary W. Randolph Burgess, and William McChesney Martin Jr., chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, all "hard money" men.

Eisenhower and his fiscal advisers agree emphatically that a sound dollar is the rock on which they should build a "freer economy."

"Checking the menace of inflation," was one of the six immediate tasks Eisenhower set the administration in his State of the Union message. "A balanced budget is an essential first measure in checking further depreciation of the dollar," he added.

Behind this lies the pervading conviction of the new administration that crisis has come to stay, and that the job at hand is to convert from inflationary debt financing, high and extraordinary taxes, and direct controls, all legacies of the limited emergencies of World War 1, the depression and World War 2. Indefinite emergency, the new economic leaders say, must be met with taxes, debt policies and economic controls which can be borne indefinitely without killing incentives to production and which do not eat away the dollar's value.

Eisenhower told Congress his administration would adopt, not a handoff economic policy, but a policy of indirect monetary controls, in which the Treasury and the Federal Reserve system would work together. Eisenhower has already given death notice to, or wiped out, most direct controls.

Indirect Controls
Federal Reserve indirect controls of adding to or subtracting from the money supply, thus easing or tightening credit. The idea is to tighten up credit in inflationary times, making it more difficult to do business and, therefore, flattening out booms before they become busts. In slump times, the Federal Reserve can make credit easier and cheaper to get, making business easier to transact and thus spurring it on.

This has not worked to perfection in past years. Consumer credit, for instance, has grown enormously in the past two years while the Federal Reserve has steadily tightened the money supply. But Federal Reserve chairman Martin is known to believe that the trouble was the government's unbalanced budget. So long, according to his theory, as government deficits annually in excess of the money supply, through government spending and expansion of bank loans on the basis of new government securities, monetary measures could not control inflation entirely.

But Martin is known to believe his grip on the money supply can control all forms of credit, even individual, consumer credit, when the government has a balanced budget.

Would Reduce Prices
The sound dollar policy, if it checks inflation, would reduce prices, or at least prevent further increases. Freeing the economy of direct controls means letting the forces of supply and demand take over, under the general aegis of monetary refereeing. That could mean price drops, and might include wages and salaries. The price of work, these losses would be compensated, the new administration leaders believe, by more predictable dollar buying power, and would stimulate business by giving confidence to investors.

The price of the big and semi-permanent defense program would stop increasing year by year as inflation makes everything more expensive. The individual's insurance policy would be worth, years hence, what it is today, and his savings would be similarly protected. Persons on pensions and annuities would have steady, rather than decreasing, buying power.

"You never had it so good," was a Democratic campaign slogan. The new administration says, in effect, "Yes, but your house is built on a quicksand of inflation."

Burgess' Statement
Deputy Secretary Burgess, Humphrey's advisor on debt and monetary policies, said in a speech recently:

"We are in the midst of a period of apparent prosperity. Based on (boom and bust) experience of the past, this is a highly dangerous situation."

"Our present prosperity is based in part on the steady decrease for some years in the value of money and a rise in the price level—inflation."

He added: "We must keep a sound and dynamic economy for a long time as a base for military power. We cannot afford boom and bust."

The new administration believes that by cutting out government deficits and hardening the value of the dollar it can make possible a freer economy, referred to by impersonal, indirect monetary controls that leave individuals (or better or worse) to their own economic choices, except in emergencies.

This is in addition to a tax policy aimed at spurring personal and business initiative. The handmaidens to these policies is management of the nation's huge national debt, now 267 billion dollars and a major force in the economy.

Tomorrow: Debt management.

She and the foreign minister both had seen Ethel Merman in "Madam," and Perle insisted that she had a good time. This undoubtedly was a lie because, notwithstanding her repeated assurances that she never let her personal feelings run against any honest newspaper comment on her behavior, I discovered later that she and Marguerite had been deeply hurt by some of my impressions.

I learned this two months later in Rome when we came upon a friend from Luxembourg in front of the Grand Hotel. We had read that Perle and Marguerite were in town and had just ordered a large bouquet of red roses, white

Monaghan Fires 23 Policemen for Taking Gross Cash

New York, Feb. 25 (AP)—Police Commissioner George P. Monaghan has fired 23 policemen after finding them guilty of taking graft from ex-bookmaker Harry Gross.

Six plainclothesmen, who were given a departmental trial along with the 23, have been found innocent by Monaghan and restored to duty.

Those fired in the largest mass dismissal in the recent history of the police department include five captains, one lieutenant, two sergeants and 15 patrolmen.

The dismissals, announced by Monaghan late yesterday, brought to 45 the number of policemen discharged in the past 2½ years for protecting Gross' one-time 20-million-dollar-a-year bookmaking enterprise. In addition, 150 policemen from low to high rank have retired or resigned while under investigation in connection with the gambling graft scandal.

Six Had Trial
The 23 men fired and the six exonerated yesterday went through a six-month departmental trial before special deputy police commissioner James A. Delehanty, which ended in January. Monaghan acted after receiving a report from Delehanty.

Those acquitted are plainclothes

Films May Aid Jamaica
Kingston, Jamaica (AP)—Jamaica, looking around for new industries to relieve serious unemployment situation, may get a lift from Hollywood. Hollywood's first major picture to be filmed in Jamaica gave employment for weeks to several hundred Jamaicans, brought 40 actors, actresses, technicians to the island's north coast for several weeks. The film was the technicolor production by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer of Ben Ames Williams' novel, "All the Brothers Were Valiant," starring Stewart Granger. M-G-M is now considering coming to Jamaica again to film Daniel Defoe's classic, "Robinson Crusoe."

flowers, might contribute to the Heart Association.

La Follette was 30, the youngest senator since Henry Clay, when he succeeded his father, Robert M. "Fighting Bob" La Follette. He was elected in 1925 and re-elected term after term until Joseph R. McCarthy, then a circuit judge, defeated him in the Republican primary of 1946, and went on to be elected senator.

McCarthy said yesterday he was "deeply shocked" at La Follette's death, and added, "I am sure that his many friends in Wisconsin and the nation will also be deeply grieved."

La Follette had lived in Washington since his defeat, acting as an economic adviser and consultant. He went to his office for the last time yesterday morning. He also was chairman of the board of a Milwaukee radio station and served on the boards of Sears Roebuck & Co. and the United Fruit Co.

In 1934 he and his brother Philip, then governor of Wisconsin, left the Republican party to organize the Progressive party in their state.

In 1946 he announced the disbanding of the party and entered the Republican primary, but was defeated by McCarthy.

La Follette married Miss Rachel Wilson Young, his secretary, in 1930. They have two sons, Joseph Oden and Bronson Cutting La Follette.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Feb. 25 (AP)—Enthusiasm over lower margin requirements faded today and the stock market pursued an irregularly lower course. Price changes were small.

Prices shot ahead yesterday on the first day the reduction was effective, but there was little or no carryover of that buying urge in today's market.

The opening was fast, as customary, but the pace slowed soon after. The rate of trading was around 1,600,000 shares, just about average. Yesterday's total was 2,300,000 shares, highest this year.

Railroads were backward in contrast to their leadership of yesterday. Steels and motors held fairly steady. Utilities sagged a trifle as did oils and building materials. Coppers were higher along with most chemicals, air lines, and aircrafts.

In the latter category, Douglas Aircraft made the best showing after reporting income for last year equal to $8.99 a share as against $5.76 a share the previous year.

Higher stocks included Southern Railway, American Airlines, American Smelting, Air Reduction, American Woolen, American Tobacco, Baldwin-Lima-Hamilton, Texas Gulf Producing, Republic Steel, General Motors, and Boeing.

Lower were New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio, Standard Oil (N.J.), U. S. Gypsum, American Telephone, U. S. Steel, Chrysler, Sears Roebuck, International Harvester, and Celotex.

Jealousy

349 Clifton Avenue
Kingston, N. Y.

Editor, The Freeman:

There is one ancient creature in this 20th century that is very much alive, Jealousy. In most individual personalities there is a predominating amount of jealousy varying in intensity to certain situations by different people.

It is unethical and contrary to our intelligence as civilized human beings to allow this undignified creature to control our business, friendship, social or professional life. Although we may not be able to obliterate this detrimental habit entirely, it is important during the habit forming age to be trained because as we grow older we become unconscious of our attitude.

Jealousy is motivated by fear, neurosis, or combinations of experiences or disappointments involving comparisons of individuals in opposite circumstances of life, one being successful, the other not.

I believe jealousy can turn into hatred because the inferiority is more complex, the hater suffering more than the one hated, to his own detriment.

In our modern civilization one of the bitterest fruits of jealousy is to crush another down by word or deed for personal gain.

Early ancient Biblical history sustains the factual beginning of human jealousy, when Cain slew Abel in the field because God (according to my interpretation) regarded the sacrifice of Abel as greater than Cain's.

Therefore, recent records in criminal history is competent evidence that this Biblical fact proves jealousy as a monstrosity of dangerous magnitude.

Many people say they are not jealous, but all of us possess it to a certain degree. We should cultivate the idea that we all can't be alike no matter how great our efforts.

A well-known psychiatrist of recent date once said, Everybody cannot be a success because there are some people who expect too much of themselves trying to keep up with other people. I say, every man is his own sculptor in carving his personality. Sincerely yours,

EDWIN J. HIGBY

...19 new light truck models
offer Hydra-Matic shifting

Throughout the 1/2-, 3/4- and 1-ton-capacity range, GMC presents 19 pickup, stake, panel and package delivery chassis models that offer Hydra-Matic Drive*— as well as the highest-compression gasoline truck engines ever designed.

Dual-Range Hydra-Matic Drive has one setting for traffic — another for gas-saving open going. Hydra-Matic takes over all gearshifting effort AND judgment.

An ultramodern engine brings the tremendous lift of 8.0-1 compression with regular gasoline. And with even more power delivered to the wheels, there's more mileage squeezed from the gas!

There's a new electrical system — greater stopping power — heavier construction.

See for yourself how these all modern GMC's are "built like the big ones" — those brawny GMC's of 26,000 GVW and up that lead all heavy-duty trucks in sales.

The Mature Parent

'Comfort of Mom's Life' Is Victim of Passive Aggression

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

Though he is only 10 years old, Danny is the comfort of his mother's life, she says. He is mild, well-mannered and prefers to help her in the house to running about with rough kids who only "pick" on him.

Now the principal of his school has come up with the news that Danny "picks" on the kids before they "pick" on him. Danny, says his principal, is his class problem.

"It must be his teacher's fault," writes his mother. "I don't want him changed in any way. He is a wonderful child the way he is."

Convenient, too. If grownup people wish others to be the "comforts of their lives," they should pick on someone their own size.

To be a comfort to us, my dictionary says, a person must be able to relieve us from "pain, want or anxiety." If Danny's mother feels such a need of a comforting child, she must feel herself oppressed by pain, want or anxiety. If so, Danny must also regard her as a pitiable creature.

Under such circumstances, we can easily understand why he never dares displease her—and has learned to live with her by diverting any anger he feels to those whom he can "pick" on without hating himself as a brute.

Danny is suffering from the passive aggression of his parent. That is what his school principal wanted to say—and didn't.

Passive aggression is always the trademark of those of us who fear to openly resent and resist what we believe to be the injustices of our lives. Sometimes we express it by invalidism that forces other people to do as we wish lest we die. Sometimes we express it by overworking so as to make other people feel like heels for wanting health, abundance and joy. Much of the time, we get what we're after. We succeed in keeping from others what we wanted and couldn't get.

As we may imagine, this form of aggression is very difficult for children to defy. The odor of sanctity that surrounds us forces them to take on the moral obligation for our sufferings so that they have to give us their lives in exchange for the one we haven't lived.

They become our "comforts." When they're 10 years old, they "pick" furtively and jealously on children who are living their lives. When they're 40 years old, they visit psychiatrists.

So this mother must really not ask me to help her keep Danny such a nice and convenient little boy. If I were she, I would not want him as he is.

I would try and locate my comfort elsewhere than in a child of 10 and work for the day when he could turn upon my heroic acceptance of pain, want and anxiety by saying, "Aw, for goodness sake, mother, quit feeling sorry for yourself."

Do You Remember

By SOPHIE MILLER

I ran across some interesting items in the Irving Scott collection given me some time ago. One is a clipping from a local newspaper dated around 1870. It is a sort of historical column written by John Romey Brodhead called Notes and Documents, relating to the Early History of Kingston. Hurley and Marlborough. Some of the following most of us know, some is new to me: "Col. Francis Lovine, succeeded Nicolas as governor, in August, 1668. The next month he visited Esopus and took preliminary steps to disband the garrison, and to found two new villages, which Henry Pawling was appointed to lay out. In the following year, on the 9th of September, 1669, the Council ordered that the garrison at Esopus should be forthwith disbanded and dismissed from their military employment, they being a needless charge to the duke. Two days afterwards, 11 September, Ralph Whitfield, Captain John Manning, Captain Thomas Chambers, William Beekman, Christopher Beresford and Henry Pawling, were appointed commissioners to regulate the affairs of Esopus and the new villages adjacent, and were furnished with full instructions for their government."

"The commissioners met at Esopus on the 17th of September, 1669, and proceeded to organize two new villages, the furthest one of which they named, Marlborough, from the abundance of limestone found there. The nearest one, Hurley, from the name of Lovine's ancestral home on the Thames, in Berkshire, England. On the 25th of September, 'the town formerly called Sopes was named Kingston,' by the commissioners. This was also in compliment to Lovine, whose father had married the widow of William Hyde, of Kingston Lisle, near Wantage in Berkshire." Beresford became chief magistrate of Hurley and Marlborough, Pawling was appointed Superintendent of Indian Affairs. Lewis de Boys (DuBois) and Albert Heymans were also appointed overseers for Hurley, John Briggs and Frederick Hursey for Marlborough, and Thomas Chambers and William Beekman for Kingston. Some of these names have continued to live, on the paternal side, to this day.

It is interesting to see how the land was allotted: "On the 17th of March, 1670, Lovine issued a new commission and instructions to some of the above men. They met in Kingston March 30, and proceeded to grant tracts of land to the discharged soldiers of the former garrison."

From another old document signed by the former governor, Richard Nicolls, dated October 23, 1668, instructions to Captain Brodhead of the garrison read in part: No. 5—"That the soldiers do give no abuse to the Indians either in the town or woods; but if any Indian happens to be drunk and abusive in the town, you may put him upon the guard till he is sober, without inflicting any other punishment upon him, which point is one of the articles made between me and them. The Indians are not to come (with their arms fixed) into the town, but to leave them without the ports, which I suppose is already built for them."

The 7th instruction read in part: "You may yourself to your own use, (or any soldier may to his use), plough and sow corn land, and any which is not already granted to any of the present inhabitants of the Sopes until you receive order from me to the contrary." Hardly a fault can be found with such ideas even today.

BOOK REVIEW

To further increase interest in the Kingston Library the following review by Mrs. G. Cramer Dodge is published.

THE LAST RESORTS

By Cleveland Amory

This is a glorified "Cook's Tour" of Society's most favored American resorts, their origin, their superlative heyday, and their decline. The author has devoted to Tuxedo Park about 40 pages; to Newport 90-odd pages; to Bar Harbor 70 pages; to Palm Beach 70 pages; to Saratoga 45 pages. To the other Social Springs—"White, Hot, Sweet and Palm"—he gives about 40 pages and to the Social Islands—Fishers, Hobe and Jekyll about 30 pages. There are several pages devoted to the Berkshires, featuring the famous wit, Joseph Choate, to the late Geraud Eoster, president for 30 years of the Lenox Club and "Shadowbrook," the huge 100-room turreted castle at Lenox, built by Anson Phelps Stokes, second only in summer cottage fame to "The Breakers" at Newport.

Tuxedo Park is built upon property acquired by foreclosure of a mortgage by Pierre Lorillard, the first back in 1814. In September 1885, Pierre Lorillard the Fifth, with Bruce Price, father of Emily Price Post) as architect did an amazingly speedy job transferring a wilderness into a smooth, finished 7,000 acre park, complete with large English type club house, 22 cottages; stores; stables; tennis courts; a swimming tank, etc., etc., all completely staffed and ready for inspection on Memorial Day 1886. The Club, to insure exclusiveness was organized in October, 1885 and consisted of such members as the Astors, the Goetts, the Kips, the Lorillards, the Pells, the Wanamakers, the Morgans and George F. Baker—to name a few. Tuxedo held its lead over other resorts in quiet elegance and formality in the life of its members. It gave its name to the famous dinner coat first worn by Griswold Lorillard at the annual Autumn Ball in 1885. This ball has continued much as it started down to the present. It is still the opening gun of the debutante season and carries a Grade A rating in New York's social inner circle for those fortunate enough to be invited.

Outstanding features of this unique resort are the eight-foot barbed wire fence surrounding the Park; its outstanding golf course, its attraction for visiting royalty (the author's description of the visit of Queen Marie of Romania is most entertaining—courtesy stops by Erie trains for club members; Sterlington-special station stop of Mrs. W. to see and be seen: where Canfield conducted a high-grade gambling Hell, where stakes ran very high and the food and drinks were superb; where horse racing, the "King of Sports" flourished, and still does for a short time each year. It was as someone said, "The place where everyone in the world was in August." Some of the author's best pen pictures in the book are about Saratoga characters—Canfield, Jim Fisk, Jim Brady and Lillian Russell, Barry Ward, Chauncey Olcott, Monty Woolley and many others.

The author has pointed a candid camera at society at play and developed a complete, composite picture of our so-called Best People at their best and at their worst.

Lady on the spot

It was ten minutes before train time when the girl missed her purse. No ticket, no money and almost no time. Things looked black for the party week end.

That's when the girl told her story to the operator on duty at the public telephone center. The operator called the girl's father. He said he'd send a messenger with some money. But . . .

By the time the messenger arrived at the railroad station the train was gone—and the girl was on it. The money for her ticket, and a little more besides, had been advanced by the operator, out of her own pocket.

Unusual? Well, perhaps. But even though telephone people are busy these days, they manage to find time for the little courteous "extras" that make your telephone service always so friendly and personal. New York Telephone Company.

GOOD TASTE TODAY

By EMILY POST
(Author of Etiquette, 'Children Are People,' etc.)

ALCOHOLIC FATHER
I cannot imagine a more distressing situation than the one described in the following letter from a bride-to-be: "I plan to be married in the spring. I live at home with my mother, father and an older brother and we are quite well known in the community. However, what is not generally known is the fact that my father is an alcoholic and I could never rely on him to give me away. Furthermore, when he is drinking, his behavior is such that he will embarrass us all and spoil the whole day. Because of this I would much prefer to go off and be married quietly, but my fiancé's family are very prominent and everyone is expecting a large wedding with all the trimmings. Can you offer any help in this very unhappy situation?"

I think you will have to come to a frank agreement with your father that he must remain completely sober for a sufficient time before your wedding, as well as on that one day, to put in a presentable appearance, or else agree to remain absent and let your brother take his place. If you feel he can't be trusted, then it will be necessary to have relatives or friends keep him away.

Secretary's Signature
Dear Mrs. Post: I am a secretary and had to write a letter while he and his family were on a vacation. I signed it "Jane." I've been told that my signature was too familiar and I'd like to know what you think about this. Answer: If Jane is the name by which he always calls you, it would be quite all right at the end of a letter. But if he calls you Miss Jones, then you should sign your name Jane Jones.

Tipping Doorman
Dear Mrs. Post: When visiting a friend who lives in a large apartment house and upon leaving the doorman gets a taxi for you, is it necessary to give him a tip?
Answer: If he merely opens the door of a taxi, a tip is not necessary. But if he has to find one for you, then a tip should be given him.

Where do the bride and groom stand in the receiving line? Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail. However, questions about wedding procedure, the receiving line and other details are answered in leaflet E-2. To obtain a copy, send 10 cents in coin to her, c/o The Kingston Daily Freeman, P. O. Wiltwyck Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, observed the 221st birthday of George Washington at a guest meeting, Monday afternoon, in the chapter house.

Briefly reviewing the life of the first President, Mrs. William Ochs, regent, emphasized the events of the winter of 1777-78 at Valley Forge, because, she said, "Wiltwyck Chapter has had a very substantial part in the building of the great memorial chapel at Valley Forge."

"So, today we honor George Washington as a great patriot, a Christian gentleman and a great leader whom all Americans revere as the father of our country," the speaker concluded.

Because of the illness of Miss Sally Rose, the good citizenship pilgrim, her essay was read by Mrs. Raymond R. Gross, who also offered interesting anecdotes of Washington's life.

Two motion picture films, the Declaration of Independence and George Washington, were shown by Warren Russell.

Mrs. W. Dale Swartzmiller, program chairman, introduced Donald Romme who played several selections including the Prelude in E Minor and Rondo Capriccioso by Mendelssohn; Minute Waltz by Chopin, and Polichinello, Rachmaninoff.

'Career Woman' Pays $2,900 Parking Fines

New York, Feb. 25 (AP)—A self-described independent career woman, Nancy Schuchman, daughter of a Pittsburgh industrialist, was fined $2,900 yesterday for failing to answer 58 parking tickets.

It was the heaviest fine imposed by Chief Magistrate John M. Murtagh since he started a crackdown on chronic traffic summons ignorers some months ago.

Miss Schuchman, 24, said she was trying to be independent of her family and was working for a charitable organization here at $145 a month. Since her apartment rent is $115 a month, she said, she had to depend on a small allowance from her parents.

Her father, Frederick E. Schuchman, president of the Homestead Valve Manufacturing Company, Pittsburgh, and her mother were in court. He paid his daughter's fine.

House Burns, Man Dies

Oleott, Feb. 25 (AP)—Fire destroyed the interior of the fire house here early today, and a 70-year-old onlooker died of a heart attack during the excitement. Damage was estimated at about $35,000. All the fire engines were saved. Sanford Stacey, keeper of a general store in this upstate village, died while watching the blaze from his home nearby. Fire Chief Clyde T. Toennieson estimated the loss and said the blaze probably was caused by defective wiring.

Written for NEA Service

In one of the most interesting hands of the recent World Championship Match in New York, Howard Schenken put up a very neat defense that led to the defeat of the Swedish declarer. I give full credit to my good friend Howard, but I think that the Swedish declarer should have made his contract anyway.

Schenken opened the deuce of spades from the West hand, and dummy with the ace. Declarer immediately took the ace of diamonds and led a diamond towards dummy. Schenken put up the king of diamonds to win this trick, and thoughtfully returned a low trump.

This was the only defense that had any real chance to defeat the contract. Without a trump return, declarer could ruff two spades in the dummy.

When Schenken returned a low trump, dummy won with the jack. Declarer returned dummy's low spade, and West won with the nine. Schenken followed through by leading another trump. South won with the nine of hearts, and now dummy had only one trump that could be used for ruffing spades.

At this point South went astray. He ruffed a spade in dummy, cashed the queen of diamonds, discarded a club, took the ace of clubs, and ruffed a club. He now led the jack of spades, hoping that West would be obliged to win and return a trump up to the king-ten.

Instead, East was able to win the spade trick and lead through declarer's trumps to give West the setting trick.

When South ruffed the third round of spades with dummy's ace of hearts, it was apparent that West's original lead had been made from three to the queen-king-queen. The correct choice was easy, since it was extremely unlikely that Schenken would have led the deuce of spades originally from four to the king-queen.

After South has ruffed his third spade with dummy's ace of hearts he can still make the contract by guessing West's distribution. He cashes the queen of diamonds, discarding a club, and ruffs a diamond in his hand.

He next leads a club to dummy's ace and ruffs a club in his own hand. This gives him nine tricks, with the king of hearts good for the tenth. The opponents win the last trick doubly with the high spade and the last trump.

Kingston High Stuns Newburgh With First Loss in 38 Games, 58-52

DUSO League Champions' 37-Game Streak Upended

Note to Charles J. Tiano, Freeman sports editor, now vacationing in Florida . . . Wesley "Bo" Gill, sports editor of The Newburgh News, is scheduled to take early passage to Florida to forget all about Newburgh Free Academy's once-proud 37-game winning streak. Contact him for details upon arrival. He will have interesting details, no doubt.

Well, it happened finally but not without a terrific razzle-dazzle performance by Kingston High School.

Left out in the cold once again when NFA nailed down its fourth straight DUSO League basketball championship last Friday night against Liberty, the present edition of Coach G. Warren Kias' stellar basketball teams rose to its greatest height Tuesday night at municipal auditorium in dealing Coach George "Lanky" Masterson's Hilly City cagers their first setback in 2½ years.

A total of 37 victories in a row over the two-year span went down the drainboard as Kingston, which has looked very weak of late, rallied to the occasion and went on to score a mighty 58 to 52 upset victory over the Academy quintet.

Bedlam Follows

Celebrations marking the end of World War 2 could have been any more of the wild nature than the bedlam surrounding municipal auditorium following Kingston's victory ending Newburgh's dynasty. It was a crazy house but an awful lot of people were happy (at least the Kingston ones).

Coach Kias, who had been priming his warriors for this "big" one was carried off the floor by the happy Maroon players and fans. It was a terrific tribute to a great coach who has turned out powerful basketball quintets in the past.

Despite the fact that the victory didn't mean a championship, last night's happy crowd sensed the upset in the making as Kingston jumped off to an early lead and had NFA on the run until the waning minutes of the first quarter. Kingston led at the first buzzer by 17 to 9.

Telepas, DuBois High

Scintillating rebound plays by George Telepas, Maroon forward, stood out from the start. On the offensive at least, Telepas' play was the No. 1 performance of the night.

Telepas and Bill DuBois, KHS guard, topped the Maroons in the scoring column with his each contributing 16 points, high for the night for both squads.

Bill Haber, backcourt ace of Kingston, emerged as a new scoring threat with his 13 points in his first real shooting game of the campaign but it came at the right time.

Mickey "the Marvel" Burkowski, who saved Newburgh's goose on many occasions in the crucial weeks of the 1952-53 season, was tied for high scoring honors with Larry Kimball and Bob Early of the Goldbacks.

Dick Bezemer, KHS pivot star, was largely due to Burkowski's being held to 11 points. Bezemer, until his retirement from the game in the fourth quarter due to personal fouls, handled Burkowski in sensational style.

With Telepas continuing his stellar rebound play, Kingston forged ahead to a seven point lead at half time, the scoreboard showing Kingston 28, Newburgh 21 as threats of the upset continued to pile up.

Newburgh Pulls Closer

The DUSO League champions, after the first half intermission, rallied their forces and pulled to within three points of Kingston at the end of the third quarter, now trailing by 40 to 37.

The Kiasmen again rose to the occasion tasting the tempting treat of this "big" win and shot ahead of the surprised Goldbacks. With one and a half minutes left on the clock, Kingston led by 54 to 50 when Bezemer was lost on personal fouls. Godwin was his replacement.

The pressure seemed to be getting the better of both squads after Burkowski's layup made it 54-50. George Telepas dashed in for a side shot, missed but was fouled by Bob Early of Newburgh. Telepas missed both charity stripe throws. After Early missed the rebound on the last of Telepas' shots, Kingston finally regained possession of the ball.

Bill Haber sent Kingston ahead by 56-50 only to have Larry Kimball make it 56-52 with his set from the side. DuBois added a foul to Kingston's total making it now 57-52. DuBois added another foul with the clock showing 17 seconds to go to give Kingston the victory and what a victory.

Maroons Home Saturday

Kingston will be in Beacon Friday night for another DUSO League encounter and will return home for an auditorium appearance Saturday night in a make-up game with Middletown. The Jayvee contest Saturday is set for 7 o'clock with the varsity tilt being scheduled for 8:30 o'clock.

3 Brothers, Villagers Score Wins

The Three Brothers Farms and Village Rest registered victories in high-scoring affairs in the "A" and "B" Divisions of the YMCA Basketball League Tuesday night.

Three Brothers walloped Economy Construction by 82 to 65 while the Villagers had an easy time of it in scoring a 90-63 victory over the Newkirk Aces.

After holding a first period lead of 20-12, the Three Brothers were on the short end of the score in the second and third periods but staged a rally of 26 points in the final canto to come up with the victory.

Chink Ferraro and Ed Lane were the big guns for the Three Brothers with 15 and 14 points. Jack Doyle and Frank Fiore added 11 apiece while Harold Hutton chipped in with 10.

Don Madison's 19 points for the Economy quintet was high for the game. Don Dempsey scored 17, Mike Provenzano 15 and Tom Rundle 12.

The first quarter of the Village Rest-Aces game was close but the Villagers soon pulled away fast to take an easy triumph. Halftime score was 40-30 for the Village Rest.

The Villagers left little doubt as to the outcome as they ran up a 67-39 lead at halftime and added 23 more markers in the final quarter to the Aces' 24.

Houghtaling Hits 22

Paul Houghtaling, forward for Newkirk, was the top scorer of the night with his 22 points. Vince Van Bramer of the Villagers collected 20 to pace his squad.

Other top scorers were Kozlowski and Phil McClosky of the Aces with 19 and 16 respectively while Jim Amato, Don Ferraro hit for 13 each. Bob Bondor scored 17 and Vince Van Loan 12 to aid the Villagers.

Crowd Hails KHS Coach

Coach G. Warren Kias, veteran KHS basketball mentor, is mobbed by the crowd and carried off the floor after Kingston's thrilling 58 to 52 victory over Newburgh Free Academy Tuesday night at municipal auditorium. For Kias it was a sweet victory. Despite his team's loss of the DUSO League pennant, his club's big victory last night brought Newburgh's 37-game winning streak to a sudden halt. (Freeman Photo)

Maroon Jayvees Halt NFA 15-Game Streak, 49 to 44

Tuesday night was certainly a rough time for Newburgh Free Academy's winning streaks.

While the Maroon varsity halted the Academy varsity's 37-game skein, the Hilly City Jayvees didn't fare any better in the prelude with their 15-game winning streak coming to a halt.

After a slow first period, the Kingston Jayvees came back strong and went on to register a close 49 to 44 victory over Newburgh.

Newburgh launched a 12-8 lead at the first quarter but after that KHS found itself and took a 23 to 20 lead at halftime and a 37-32 margin after the third canto.

Houghtaling Scores 18

Jack Houghtaling of Kingston was top scorer of the game with 18 points. Tom Fleming hit for eight, Charlie Johnson seven and Herb Watrous six.

Newburgh's best point-scoring was turned in by Castenaro and Connine who each collected 11. Harold Kaplan followed with 10.

Rough Wrestlers to Support Etchison-Meyers on Friday

The semi-final and preliminary has been announced for Friday's wrestling show at the municipal auditorium, featuring Ronnie Etchison and Sonny Meyers, two leading television stars.

In the opening bout at 8:45, Eddie King of Poughkeepsie will meet Joe Muscato, Buffalo, a reformed boxer, who still depends on a terrific left hook when the going gets rough.

Prior to the star attraction, Frank Hurley of Australia will meet Jim Austeri of New York, who learned his wrestling from Strangler Lewis, one of the all-time greats of the mat sport.

Both Title Contenders

In the feature, Etchison and Meyers, two top ranking contenders for Lou Thesz' National Wrestling Alliance championship, will wrestle for a two out of three fall victory.

Hurley and Austeri, the semi-finalists, are a pair of hard hitters, matched for two out of three also, but there is a time limit of 45 minutes on this bout, so as not to interfere with the main attraction.

Hurley has an edge in height and reach, but that probably won't bother the five-foot, seven-inch Austeri, who has chopped down many a big man with his back breaker, and head scissors he learned from the Strangler.

The opener between King and Muscato is a one-fall, 30 minute tussle.

King, known to local fans as a wrestler who'll use any trick or blow to gain an edge, will have to be careful of Muscato's left hook, because the former pugilist hasn't forgotten how to use it, and reportedly often does when an opponent rolls him by resorting to so-called illegal holds.

Promoter Ted Bayly of Troy is in hopes of seeing a jammed auditorium for Friday's show, since his success last week with Pat O'Connor, another TV star, who drew 900 fans.

Four Yanks Okay Terms; Robinson Signs A's Pact

(By The Associated Press)

Money talked yesterday, particularly in the training camps of the New York Yankees and Philadelphia Athletics. The Yankees came to terms with pitcher Allie Reynolds, outfielders Hank Bauer and Mickey Mantle and first baseman Joe Collins. It was believed Reynolds got $38,000, Bauer $21,000, Mantle $18,000 and Collins $15,000. Eight members of the world champions including pitchers Vic Raschi and Ed Lopat are still unsigned.

The A's signed first baseman Eddie Robinson to a two-year contract for an estimated $30,000 per year. This makes the ex-Chicago White Sox player the highest paid player on the squad and the figure is the fourth highest ever paid to a member of the Athletics. The A's also have eight men demanding more dough.

Pitcher Bobby Shantz and Manager Jimmy Dykes of the A's denied reports that Shantz hurt his pitching arm in a batting practice accident Sunday.

The Boston club did some contract business, too, but the money involved wasn't disclosed. Versatile Billy Shantz signed with the Red Sox and pitcher Jim Wilson and catcher Paul Burris came to terms with the Braves in time to take part in the first workout of 23 battery candidates at Bradenton, Fla.

Miami Beach, Fla. — Johnny Saxton, 147, Brooklyn, outpointed Charley "Red" Williams, 150, Newark, N. J. 10.

Parings Are Due

Meanwhile, the NCAA confirmed reports that Notre Dame, Navy, De Paul, Eastern Kentucky and Fordham have been selected as at-large teams for the Eastern Regional Tournament. Arthur C. Londorg, chairman of the tourney, said he would try to have the pairings today but that he might not have them until Thursday.

The chances are, however, that the pairings will wind up like this, based on the colleges' proximity to each other:

De Paul vs. Notre Dame; Fordham vs. the New England Conference selection; Eastern Kentucky vs. winner of Mid-American Conference and Navy vs. Middle Atlantic selection.

Louisiana State, Southeastern Conference winner, along with the Ivy League, Big Ten and Southern Conference victors, will get a first round bye in the east.

Re took over the lead in the Southwest Conference last night by beating Texas, 61-56.

In other major games North Carolina State nipped Fordham, 73-70 in overtime, Villanova took Dayton, 80-70; Syracuse sank Canisius, 88-76; Idaho whipped Washington State, 75-62 and Santa Clara went overtime to down San Jose State, 50-47.

Spring Styles in Line Dressing

By AL McCLANE
Fishing Editor

Some confusion appears to exist as to the purpose of line dressing, and this is not the time of year to make mistakes. The only legitimate reason that I know for dressing a fly line is to make it float. I don't believe any dressing adds to the life of the line, and all the dressings with which I have had any experience make a line gummy if they're left in storage over the winter.

If you leave a greased line on a reel for a period of a week or more, the absence of air around the inside coils gives the line a "fly paper" finish. Humidity is chiefly responsible for oil-finished lines becoming tacky. A stored line will go bad sooner than one which is kept in use—and once a line has become tacky, dressing won't help any more to do harm.

If your line isn't too bad you can rub in powdered graphite until the line is as shiny as metal. Then don't put on any more line dressing until the graphite wears off. Your line will be smoother and better after it has been used a few times. If the finish is too badly gone, however, this treatment won't work, and then the best idea is to get a new line. It's also good practice to check your line for rough spots at least once a season.

Fly lines show dark spots when the finish begins to crack off. Actually the line may be in fishable shape except for the places where you stepped on it or dropped a few dozen back casts against the rocks. These cracks can at least be closed. Get some clear varnish and a large damping needle; spread the varnish in thin coats over the dark areas with the needle point. Make certain you apply very small amounts; it is better to dip the needle several times than to remove excessive amounts. Allow each coat to dry one or two days. It's important to take care of your lines because they are expensive and a little preventive maintenance goes a long way.

If the finish breaks away the line will absorb water, fish slime and dressing. Before long it will rot. One of the quickest ways to test the finish of a fly line is to take a few feet of the running end between your hands and give it a reasonably hard pull. Then take some ordinary ink in a cloth and wipe it over the section you pulled. It should wipe off clean. If dark discoloration of ink appears, the line is done for.

Build Up Your Bowling By Knockin' 'Em Down

With STEVE NAGY, Bowler of the Year

It is surprising to see the number of bowlers who drop the ball on the approach behind the foul line.

Yet most of these bowlers would swear they do no such thing.

The most common reason for dropping the ball on the approach, assuming you have a properly fitted ball, is a matter of incorrect timing. The upper half of your body—shoulders, arms and hands—is ready to deliver the ball before the lower half of your body.

This lack of coordination naturally causes you to release the ball before you have completed your slide to the foul line with your left foot.

Looking into the fault even further, this poor timing can generally be traced to an obvious attempt to force the ball into the backswing at too fast a pace.

Most people force a ball in an effort to obtain greater speed, believing that great speed is necessary for high scores.

This is not true.

FORCE — Many bowlers force their ball in an effort to obtain greater speed. (NEA)

Excelsiors Enjoy Annual Banquet

Praising Excelsior Hose Company for its cooperation and service over the years, Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy expressed sentiments in favor of fire bells instead of sirens, when he addressed the volunteers and ladies' auxiliary Saturday at the annual banquet and dance in Roseland Restaurant.

"There's something about a bell," the chief said, "that goes along with the tradition of fire companies. The men have recognized this call to duty since the early days of fire-fighting, and it would be nice if we could have the bells once again in the towers of our firehouses."

The chief pointed out that towers are in need of repairs, however, and would require a lot of work before they could be used again.

It was evident that Excelsior volunteers agreed with the chief, judging from the applause with which his remarks were received.

rules, regardless of sentiment, and Finnerty and Beitner explained that the state rules allow municipalities opportunity for variations.

Presses for Point

Thomas J. Plunket, county Democratic leader, who pressed for the "local residence" preference as a civil service job requirement at one point, proposed adjournment of the hearing "until we get the rules right."

Plunket noted that appendices were listed in the rules, and Finnerty said that those included "got in more or less through error."

Beitner, who said the "local preference" rule in the new form was worded in reverse, but agreed to the proposed change of wording on insistence of Plunket, Yerry and others.

Asks About Firemen

A. Foster Winfield, assistant BPW secretary, and captain of the A. H. Wicks Engine Company, asked why exempt firemen were not mentioned in the provision protecting war veterans from loss of status by the abolishing or transferring of positions, and after some discussion, Beitner agreed that this point should be included in the rules.

Finnerty explained, at the outset, that local civil service rules were about 12 years out of date, and if the state model rules were not used the commission would be forced "to make a botch of it." The state system, he said, is now better than 60 per cent in operation.

Rules Are Held Lengthy

Rules in Kingston on an individual basis were held "excessively lengthy," with some material in them unnecessary. The proposed state rules, Beitner said, have "the force and effect of law," and that, he explained, was the reason for the public hearing.

Efforts here in the last two and a half years, it was explained, was toward making the local rules coincide with the state recommended model rules so they would be up to date.

It was announced that copies of the proposed new rules had been distributed considerably in advance of the meeting, but several of those in the audience complained that they had not received copies.

DiLallo Gives View

John DiLallo, of Albany, executive secretary of the New York State Council 30, State, County and Municipal Employees, said he felt the civil service employees present had been "either ill-informed or misinformed."

"I know it is not the practice of the state to impose itself, he said. 'It only appears when requested,' and he asked Beitner if the 'city had been mandated to make the change.'

Beitner answered: "Mandated, no. Strongly recommended, yes." Beitner cited as a reason for more up-to-date rules the recent amendment which changed the height and weight requirements for the selection of local patrolmen. The local height and weight provisions, he said, dated back to 1941. The new rule opens a wider field of recruitment and meets present-day conditions and stands as a model rule, he said.

Cites Record

Finnerty, asked why the section dealing with the "local residence" requirement, said: "Anybody who knows my record, knows that I fight and will continue to fight for the competitive system. Many practices used in private employment cannot be used in public employment. Many times it has been almost impossible to process an examination under the old rules. The only thing that can keep a competitive civil service is your interest, and not mine. I don't mean to cram anything down anybody's throat. I never would let anyone cram anything down my throat."

While the commission was working on the rules, Finnerty said, local civil service employees, "never once came and said: 'what are you doing?'"

The commission, he said, is "just trying to take care of your problems. We get no pay for this. You never asked any questions, and if you did we could have closed things up long ago."

Finnerty recommended that representatives of each department confer with the commission on provisions of the appendices. He declared as one point in the discussion: "If I had my way, I would eradicate all political influence on civil service, and I think that's all the city of Kingston should be interested in."

Likes No Removal

Plunket said he did not like to see any competitive classifications "taken away" and Finnerty said he was in favor of protecting competitive classifications and said that any employee, who holds a legitimate competitive status will not "under any circumstances lose under any change."

Finnerty said the commission was empowered to waive the residential requirement if recruitment was insufficient by asking state permission. The commission is going along now, he said, to save for a local resident the position of superintendent of the water department, and has been allowed a two-year limit to do so.

The commission "went to bat" he said to create the position of equipment mechanic in the fire department as a protection of the competitive system by getting changed a rule which said after it was once vacant the position was open to civilian employees.
